“ *The first time I saw Andrea.....I thought dang she's tall. Even taller with her 4-5 inch heels she wore with her uniform. She always looked sharp in her uniform. I remember seeing her in Ghana one day
...and she had this cute white linen dress on. I said I love that dress!
The next day, she knocked on my door and gave me the dress!!
Such a kind and sweet gesture. But that was her. She was very straight forward, kind and loved to have a good time. I will miss you, Andrea. Fly high with the angels!!! Until we meet again.*

“ I remember the first time I saw you. You were walking through the concourse in your red dress, red hat and high heels, and I remember thinking, damn she is wearing that uniform. At that time I never imagine that we would become great work friends, and share some amazing times together.

Attending your homegoing service was a real reality check on just how short life can be. I will miss your lively energy, outspoken-ness and your beautiful smile. You were such an amazing person so full of life, that I truly enjoyed the times we have spent together. And although I will miss you dearly I know God had a better plan for you. I just thank Him for the time He allowed us to be a part of each other's lives. May you Rest In Love my friend. Love you much ❤️ “ Rest easy my beloved sister!! My time with you was short while flying out of NYC, but memorable! I will forever remember you not liking me, then growing to love me after we had one small interaction. You will forever live in my heart and I will miss you terribly. Continue to sleep in the arms of your Savior and we'll see each other again on the other side....for we're going to a place where there's nothing...nothing to do, but walk around heaven all day. My heart is heavy....

In your absence, I find comfort in the memories we shared together. I will forever recall the laughter, the adventures, and the quiet moments when love was the only language needed.

You may be gone, but your love remains, a beacon of hope and strength that will guide me and many through life's challenges. We'll carry you in our hearts, celebrating your life, your love, and the incredible difference you made in our world.

“ Andrea loved life. She was blessed with many virtues ... a beautiful person both inside and out, intelligent, and a sharp sense of humor. What made her truly unique though was her spirit. She had a spirit of joy and loved those who were in her life. Her spirit and her courage are an inspiration and will live on as part of her legacy. She will always have a special place in my heart. Fly high my sweet friend. May you rest in eternal peace.

“ Memories of Andrea immediately bring to mind her “let’s do it!” Spirit. She had an energy for life which could ignite those around her. You could nit easily forget her sense of humor, often summarized with a one- liner that would quickly summarize her take on the situation. It would often make me smile , as she did not suffer fools. Her joyful smile , when she was really enjoying a moment, would characterize her appreciation for being there. You would have to smile too. Blessings
