

Arielle Monae Reign Coleman

December 9, 2024 - June 13, 2025

Arielle Monae Reign Coleman, aka Ari, was born on December 9, 2024 and in her short but powerful time on this earth, she gave the world more love, light, and strength than some give in a lifetime. Though only six months, Ari was, and always will be, our warrior-our heart, our reason for existing.

To her mommy, she was affectionately called Puddin, and to her daddy, she was the queen of nicknames-he found joy in giving her a new one every chance he got. Ari's personality was as vibrant as her spirit. Her facial expressions told entire stories without her needing to say a word.

She was honest with her eyes, her looks, and the little smirks she gave when she was up to something. She knew what and who she liked, and she let the world know it.

Ari had a mischievous kind of joy-one of her favorite games was pulling out her feeding tube or tugging her bonnet down over her eyes like she was telling the world, "I'm done for today." And somehow, it made her even happier when she did. Her laughter, her fight, and even her sass were the heartbeat of her parents' world.

She leaves behind her devoted parents, Nevaeh Archer and Eric Coleman, along side loving grandparents, aunts, uncles, great grandparents, cousins, etc. who loved her with a depth that words could never capture. Together, they stood by her side through every battle, holding her, praying over her, and loving her through every single heartbeat.

Though Arielle's time here was short, her presence was powerful. She filled our lives with more love, laughter, and purpose than we ever thought possible.

She taught us how to be strong, how to love deeper, and how to find joy even in the hardest moments. Ari wasn't just our daughter, she was our whole world, and she will forever be the soul of our story.

In lieu of flowers, the family kindly requests that donations be made to the Cardiac ICU at Arthur M. Blank Hospital, 2220 N. Druid Hills Rd., SE., Atlanta, GA., 30322
