“ My God Trells..... It's been way too surreal for me to fully wrap my mind around the fact that I won't get to see you or speak to you again. A small part of me has still held on to a feeling that you're not gone and that I'll hear from you when you recover. A small part of me held on to a feeling that I would be coming to visit you in the hospital today instead of the funeral home. I'm not ready to accept that this is reality Trells. My friend since middle school.... Thank you for all the laughs. Thank you for all the conversations. Thank you for the time. I feel blessed to have known you. I feel grateful to have been your friend for this long. You will truly be missed. 🙏🕊️

“ I’ll miss the obsessive calls about Nighttime before Christmas merch. I miss the random call and visit’s because It was always a good time when we were together. I’m still in disbelief but I’m happy you are no longer in pain. I’m praying for you, Nelson and babies continuously. ❤️

“ Words cannot express the pain we are feeling at this time. Sweet Chantrell with the beautiful smile. Uncle Bubba and I are devastated. your cousins are hurting. So, many precious memories of you and Tristan when you visited and stayed with us in New Mexico. You and Tristan were the daughters that I never had. God always knows what He is doing. He sets the journey in motion and all we need to do is follow and be obedient. God, knew that you were one of His strong children. When a task was given you handled it the best way you knew how. You were an awesome mother and loved your children unapologetically. What a blessing you were to everyone you met. Watch over us please baby. We will remember you always. No worries about the children. God already has a plan. He always does in His own timing. We need to all pray mightily. Rest in Heaven Sweetheart.

“ She was my first love and my my true love. We bonded since 2001 and was committed in 2013. The love she had for me was unbreakable which is why I asked for her hand in marriage on May 2020 and we married on July 2020. Her love for me and our kids were unconditional. She did not let battling terminal illnesses stoping her from sacrificing her life for her children and for our love. All she wanted was a family and that’s what she had. I will miss her deeply. That was my baby. I’d do anything for her no matter the ups and downs. We couldn’t break apart because our love was too strong for that and I thank God he brought me to her. We were meant to be even when people disagreed. I love you baby and I will see you on the other side.

Forever Love,
Nelson Milton (Your beloved Husband)
