“ Mrs. Strayhon, I don't know you and I didn't know your son, I just learned about his death from a news feed on Fox news and my heart absolutely breaks for you and your family. My son was incarcerated at Gwinnett county jail and was released shortly after your sons death, I know first hand the horrors that they faced on a daily basis. I am so so sorry for your loss and this may not be the place, but I don't know of another way to reach you. I was offered a Job with Naphcare and I was able to see how the inmates are marginalized and treated with almost a violent disrespect. I fault the deputies absolutely but NAPHCARE is the problem after being interviewed and offered the job at Gwinnett correctional center I went home and I prayed and I declined the job, I feel now maybe in some capacity I would have been able to help, maybe not your son but maybe another. Naphcare is a very well insolated company but not impossible to touch, they should be held responsible for the medical neglect. I hope you receive this message. No mother should ever have to bury her son. My heart hurts for you. If there is anything I can do or any additional insight I can provide please feel free to contact me

With heartfelt condolences

“ A few weeks have passed and this still feels so unreal. You had my heart from ages 15-21 and boy was I in LOVE with you. I still remember the first time you kissed me on my 15th birthday, my face hurt from smiling so hard the whole day. I remember the day you came home and requested I call you Scottie, the boys had given you the nickname because that high top haircut had them going crazy lol it was Scottie Fresh to be exact. I have so many memories and shared so many first experiences with you I will never ever forget and I'll hold them close to my heart forever. Like Christmas with your family, waking up to breakfast then shopping with your mom, church, all those parties in the basement, you and that damn skateboard I could really go on forever. I say all this knowing your spirit is present and you will live forever in the hearts of your loved ones. I'm so happy to know you have a baby coming into the world soon and a piece of you will resurface into physical form for your mommy to love on. I will continue to pray for your family may they always be blessed ☐

“ Still feels unreal but I know you're watching over all your friends and loved ones. I'm probably one of few who never really called you Scottie lol, I always called you Deion even though you hated it but you still let me do it anyways. I still remember how we met.. before high school and I'll always remember how much of genuine friend you were to me even after I became a mom. I'm glad you got to meet my son once. I know you would have been a great father. I'll be here for your family always whenever needed. Rest in Paradise Deion. Forever missed but never forgotten

“ Deion was such a happy individual...through good and bad he always found a way to steer himself straight..he was so smart and always ahead of others. Something about Deion, he will always do what he wants to do and would never let anything stop him.. you could not tell him anything he didn't want to hear. Such an advocate for himself. Years ago he would talk about making clothing, putting out music. I was so happy to see him following his dreams at last...I was blessed to be more than your friend but most importantly, your friend. You were so funny, so rare, never the less, an entertainer. I pray over every person grieving you Deion. You have so many people who love you. . All of the memories we've shared over the last decade will forever live. Good and bad. I thank God for every moment. And I trust that God has a plan...Look over us. Rest easy Deion. Much love ❤️

“ Scottie is the coolest most genuine and ambitious person I’ve met. I remember he came to my house and saw my paintings, he liked them so much he pulled it off the wall and turned it into a shirt with the machines he had at his house. Since that day we would work on clothes like everyday constantly feeding off each others energy. He’s a big part of my creative flow with clothing. We had so much in common from recording music to designing, and just loving art. He was a very lovable and just loving person. So full of love and life, wanting only to love and be positive. So many times I feeling down & he helped me shake things off. That man changed my life and helped me believe in myself because he really believed in all his friends and family. He was such a big person with such a wide vase personality and beautiful traits he had a really diverse group of friends and he was great at bringing us all together and spreading and sharing love. I will miss Scottie dearly and think of him every day. I miss you my good friend and I love you thank you for giving me so much life by being my friend and giving me so many memories. My friend my brother my teacher. I love you brah

“ I never met another individual so confident and happy as Scottie. I remember we used to go to the skate park and Scottie would go hard for hours trying to land tricks. He was always the life of everything. He mad every event fun and always made sure all his friends were good. That's a real one. My brother for life. Legends Never Die.

“ I will always remember the way you loved me. You will always be my brother, my twin & I will miss you for the rest of my life. I know you will always find a way to let the ones you loved know you are still watching over us. I know this because you always checked up on the ones you loved. I'll never forget that about you. I remember you were the only one my mom would allow me to leave the neighborhood with back when we were younger lol. You were and will always be my protector. I love you. Until we meet again twin ☐
