“ I was fortunate to have made contact with Dillon, we have been work colleagues for about 4 years, he was not just work mate, he was more like a brother to me, despite what was happening around him, Dillon always comes to work and gives his utmost, of recent he was not in the best of health, he used to complain of migraine, but still had that smile, and will always go out of the way to impress me with his work, he always calls me bossman (it still echoes in my head) I wish this was just a horrific dream, on the night of his death, I spoke to him, he actually followed me to my car, when I was leaving work, I usually leave like 7, but for some reason I stayed until 9 that night, he probably got into the accident like 9:15, we are still in shock, he was a great individual, will surely be missed, his memories will live on, we love and miss you Dillon, RIP brother

“ All I can replay in my head is; Dillion Dillion Dillion, oh man Dillion. I never thought I would be writing something like this. I had thoughts of all of us being old and surrounded together , watching you and Lashawn and the kids grow. My heart broke to pieces at work when I got the call about you. So many things went through my mind as I was in disbelief. Thank you for the memories we shared from meeting you at work to becoming a part of my family, blessing me with another niece and finally a nephew. Dillion was the most camera shy person ever, lol but I am glad many of us got to capture the moments we had with you. We will miss that beautiful big smile you always had. When I would ask you, Dillion why you smiling, you would always laugh and smile even more harder. Just all smiles. You were a big help to my family and even me; you were truly appreciated. Even though you were camera shy I got you to make a few tik toks with me. You will forever be missed Dillion, RIP. Thank you for all the good memories we shared and all you have done while on this earth. Gone too soon but never forgotten. Long live Dillion 🙏

“ The love & happiness that you've brought to my cousin's heart is eternally embedded in our family's bloodline. Only had intentions to knowing you more. But there are greater forces that are taking place beyond our will. It'll be an honor to experience the love you have left with us. The extensions of your being, those beautiful children. We all love you. I love you brother.

“ I met Dillon in 2020, when he came to New York with his family. Dillion was always smiling and I could tell he loved his daughter because they seem to be inseparable. The next time I saw him again was when he came for his son's christening and my friend Shelly's birthday party. I remember him holding his son before the priest to be blessed. Who would've thought that would've been the last time I actually saw him . My condolences go out to his family, children, friends and others who may have known him for a short time. Gone to soon . RIP Dillion and rise in glory.

“ Rip Dillion, I never thought I would have to be writing something like this. That just goes to show you how unpredictable life truly is. Dillion was my oldest sister boyfriend and the father of her two children and also the step father of her two other children. Thank you for all the good memories that we have made through out the years .Dillion I cannot put into words how truly sorry I am that this has happened to you . I will cherish the memories that we have made. Especially my favorite one when it was just us two in the delivery room with Lashawn and Dillion started to faint once he seen dearra head coming out n I had to quickly grab him so we both won't miss it lol. Dillion May your soul find peace allowing you to rest peacefully knowing that your children will always be loved and taken care of.

“ That smile you see on Dillon's face was his signature. Even when he was upset that smile was still present. He loved family and loved people. He was always trying to help someone. If you were a friend of mine or his dad's, then you were his aunt or uncle and your children were his cousins. You became his family. I still haven't been able to process any of this. Sleep in peace 💕💕
