“ He was just simply the best uncle! He was kind and loving and protective over his family. He was a gentle man when you talked to him. If you had him in your corner you had him in your corner. He was loyal. He was very thoughtful. I still have the toys he brought back from the army. I have so many memories its hard to articulate just how important he was to my life but our family will never be the same. It is just good to know in the near future we wont have to deal with death anymore and this feeling I feel in my heart at this moment will never be felt. And the possibility of seeing him again and laughing with him just feels my heart with joy. I will always love him forever and a day.
