“ What is it about tears we are afraid of? It is human to cry. Crying helps you to heal. Cry with friends, family, and alone. Don't be surprised when the grief “freight train” runs over you. Just be in the moment, and it will pass. Struggle through your emotions and you will find relief as your reward

“ I would like to send my condolences to the family and friends of Eldrin. As cousins we shared some fond memories but as we grew and life happened... so did the distance that grew between us. I know that you are resting in the arms of our Lord and Savior right now. You fought a good fight and your life and legacy will live on in all of us.

“Who would have thought that a chance phone call from a skip trace representative with American express to me another skip trace representative with JC Penny would have led to 23 years of laughter, friendship and love from a man I called my best friend. Although relationships end, that doesn't mean the feelings go away too, watching my ex's courage, humor and grace in the face of death, reminded me of why I fell in love with him in the first place.”

“ I really didn't really know Eldrin Jr. I came up during the day and times that his father was the Chief Sheriff of Fulton County. I actually met El Jr. after his mother Mrs. Betty Joe passed away a little over a year ago. Elizabeth and I never seen each other in person but I can honestly say that we developed a relationship, a bond like father and son. El and I had a relationship built on commonality. We both had been diagnosed with a disease that carries a death sentence or so they say. We laughed and talked on the phone whenever conditions would allow and we made plans to meet someday and do business. Of course everyone that know Eldrin Jr. Knew that he is a business man. I got to know and love him more than words can ever say in such a short time. I'm really gonna miss you dude. Rest well ok

My deepest sympathy goes out the family of Eldrin Bell, Jr. It seems like yesterday when he and his sisters were singing in the Youth Choir at Turner Monumental AME Church. We applaud his accomplishments.

He fought the good fight, he finished the race and he kept the faith. His crown awaits him.

Family, remember: "In Christ there are no endings ...only beginnings."

*To Eldrin Bell,
You and your family are in my thoughts and prayers. I am so sorry for the loss of your son. There are no words for a parent who has lost a child, as I share in your sorrow with the loss of my daughter Coki. May you find comfort knowing that your friends care and truly understand.
Be well, friend.
