To the family of Gregory Stephenson my deepest sympathy go out to you. Gregory was a childhood friend we attended grade school together and also Southwestern Church Of God as children singing in the choir. I remember him always smiling and quiet. “ Greg was very important to my father. I have so many childhood memories of hanging out at his place and his grand laugh. In our childhood home, there were hand-drawn images of my siblings and me that hung on the four walls of our dining room. Today those images hang in our adult homes and are among our most cherished possessions. I remember doing photo shoots for all sorts of things with Greg. As a kid, we would hang out at his apartment in Detroit, where there was a drawing of Al Jarreau in his living room. He and my dad stuck together through many of life's challenges, and I know that they have sustained each other in tough times. While death is painful, no matter the time, we can rest assured that he and that big smile of his will greet us one day at the gates of Heaven.
