“ A Celebration of Life for Jane

If you spent any time with my mom at all, then you have a glimpse of what a very special woman she was and how much she meant to us. She was remarkable in many ways, having seen many joys and faced many of life's challenges without much fanfare, complaint or self-pity. Although she was a spiritual woman she was not outwardly religious. As you can imagine, it was difficult for us both to get through all of the end of life discussions, but we did talk through her last wishes and address the 'big ticket' items, at least. She wanted to be placed to rest next to her family in upstate New York and also make an opportunity for her close friends here in Georgia to speak some words and share memories and stories of her after she was gone. Nothing fancy, no viewing, no ornate service, just the family support circle and close friends who knew her best. This was her request and we are honoring it.

Her wishes came as no surprise to me since mom had lived the majority of her life being more concerned with everyone else's comfort than her own. Her core beliefs and central character never wavered. She was a proud and unpretentious woman, having overcome many obstacles and adversities in her life. She saw joy too. Of course, one of her most treasured accomplishments was having raised four children to adulthood and doing it single handedly pretty much. For sure, this was no easy task.

Mom cared for each and every person she met and cherished the time she spent with her friends in our Decatur community. Had someone told me seven years ago how much I would miss hearing her tell me about her day's activities, whether it be exercise class, the line dancing, volunteer efforts or just lunch out with the girls, I would not have believed it. Though I have learned many lessons from my life with her, none are more precious than those she modeled in her last year with us. May each of you be lucky enough to hold even a single memory of her and know that her life was more enjoyable and better by having each of you in it.

“ I recently read about the death of your dear loved one. Even though we are not acquainted please accept our sincerest condolences. Job 1:2,18,19 & Job 10:1 says: " I will give vent to my concern about myself. I will speak in the bitterness of my soul." This was after the loss of his 10 children. Job needed to vent his concerns, he needed someone to talk to. Having someone to talk to may help you and your family cope during this difficult time. Please visit www.jw.org for more encouraging bible based examples of endurance.
