

Jimmy Barfield

February 23, 1967 - October 27, 2021

Jimmy Lee Barfield Sr. was born in Memphis, Tennessee on February 23, 1967 to Freddie Chew and the late William Barfield, Sr.

He graduated from Luxora High School, and then furthered his education at Cotton Ball Technical College. After completing college, he joined the military and was introduced to several different countries and cultures. It was then when he started using his degree and became an engineer for different companies, most recently Honeywell.

Jimmy was a man that lived his life to the fullest, he did not let anything or anyone hold him back from achieving his desired goals. He was a man that showed no fear, and he did his best to instill the same logic into his children. He was not afraid of taking risks; he would always say "You Got This!". The memories that he will leave behind are a mixture of humor, wisdom, and precision.

He is preceded in death by his father William Barfield, Sr., and his son Javarius Barfield.

Jimmy accomplished many rewarding, and impressionable tasks; such as, his experience in Desert Storm, as well as receiving the highest honor in engineering.

He leaves behind to honor his memory, his mother Freddie Chew, five children Contessa Barfield, Dejah Barfield, Daisha Brown, Martavis Love, and Jimmy Barfield, Jr. six grandchildren Carter Williams and Idan Williams, Aubrey Hill, Ebony Love, Allisuun Love, and Elijah Love. Four siblings, Joyce Barfield, William Barfield, Carl Barfield, and Terrie Peterkin, his life partner Ella Scott and a host of aunts, uncles, nieces, nephews, cousins, and friends.
