

Leslie Deveaux Christian

August 14, 1948 - November 14, 2025

Leslie Coral Deveaux-Christian, born in New York August 14, 1948, and passed away November 6, 2025, in Decatur, Georgia. A proud Bahamian-American woman raised in New York, Leslie lived a life defined by creativity, service, and deep devotion to those she loved.

Born to Bloneva and Clinton Deveaux, Leslie carried forward their strength, warmth, and enduring family spirit. She pursued her education with determination, earning a bachelor's degree in psychology from Fisk University. Her keen understanding of people and her genuine compassion shaped the way she supported others throughout her life.

Leslie built a dynamic professional life, contributing her talents across multiple industries, including her work with Eastern Airlines and later AT&T. She was known for her intelligence, steady work ethic, and warm, thoughtful presence in every workplace.

A generous community servant, Leslie dedicated much of her time to volunteering with the Amani Sewing Academy at the Amani Women's Center. A gifted fiber artist, Leslie often said she could “create anything she could see”. Her hands brought beauty into the world, and her creativity uplifted countless women learning new skills and finding confidence through art.

Her children survive Leslie: Devan Armstrong, Din Deveaux, and Bloneva Christian; her brother, Clint Deveaux; and a loving community of grandchildren, nieces, nephews, and extended family. She is preceded in death by her parents, Bloneva and Clinton Deveaux; her sister, Ayisha Abdul-Hakeem; and her brother, Edward Deveaux, whom she held close in her heart.

Her family wishes to express their deepest gratitude for the love, prayers, and support offered during this time. They honor Leslie's life with profound appreciation for her generosity, her artistry, and the unshakeable love she showed to those around her.

Leslie Deveaux-Christian will be remembered as a devoted mother, a brilliant maker, a community builder, and a woman who lived with imagination, and creativity. Her legacy will continue to inspire all who were blessed to know and love her.
