

Malachi Rahman Wynn

March 1, 2005 - August 8, 2025

Malachi Wynn, cherished and remembered by his biblical name, “God’s messenger,” entered eternal rest embraced in the love of his family and the grace of his Heavenly Father. Though his earthly journey was brief, his impact was immeasurable.

Malachi was a devoted, new father to his beloved daughter, Malaina Ethereal Wynn, a role he cherished deeply. He longed to be the best father he could be, and those who knew him witnessed the tenderness, dedication, and joy he carried in that calling.

Malachi was a caring and kind person whose love ran deep and true. He loved with a force that could not be contained—pure, unwavering, and without hesitation. His radiance was undeniable, a light that touched everyone who crossed his path.

Malachi leaves behind his mother, Jasmine Smith, his father, Malcolm Wynn, and his brother, Machi Wynn. Though not twins, Malachi and Machi were inseparable—extensions of one another—bound by a love and loyalty that cannot be broken, even by death. He also leaves behind his cherished daughter, Malaina Ethereal Wynn.

He is survived by his grandparents J.C. Smith, Venus (Carlos Woodard), Patricia Wynn, and Samuel Wynn; his uncle Hakim Smith; his aunt Venus Smith; his bonus brother Jasai Toney; and many other family members who adored him, including Nakayla Goodman, Amir Smith, Victor Sanders and Amina Smith.

Though he is no longer here in body, Malachi's spirit continues to guide his family—especially Machi, to whom he passes the torch of legacy. His love, light, and wisdom will forever echo through the lives he touched, reminding us that angels sometimes walk among us.
