“ I knew Marcus from our time in our high school band and our soccer team. I would be lying if I said we were good friends, but we were friendly and he probably had a much bigger impact on me than I could imagine having on him.

Rarely is anything easy in life -- even if appears as such to those on the outside looking in. Even so, Marcus made a lot of things look easy when we were kids. I remember him as friendly, kind, joyful, playful, and creative.

Marcus might have been the most talented soccer player on our team. He inspired me to compete with him in practice. Whether it was running laps or scrimmages, whenever I could (occasionally, at best) I could present some competition for him, it was a highlight of my day--even if I kept that private. It was never a negative thing--he was gracious and encouraging to others.

When my dad found out he was expecting another son--when I was 16--he broached the topic of names for the boy. I offered up Marcus, largely due to what I thought of Marcus Ford.

My youngest brother Marcus grew up in Colorado, took me flying as the pilot of the plane on his 18th birthday, taught high school calculus at South Atlanta high school for a time, and eventually earned his PhD. There's a lot about him that is representing the name of the young man I knew in high school.

I hope Marcus's relationships with others during the rest of his life beyond high school were at least as joyful and inspiring. I'll always remember Marcus fondly. Rest in peace and love and blessings to his family.

“ Marcus was a kind person who was a friend to everyone. He was smart and had a smile that could light up a room. I have very good memories of Marcus in high school. RIP and God Speed.

“ I spent 5 years sitting next to Marcus during Band practices, rode the bus to football games, and other activities; my fondest memory is that Marcus and I were always hungry before the end of band practice at around 12:15am Our lunch period was from 12:15-1:00pm and there was a strict rule of no eating during band practice. So, being trumpet players and located on the back row and above the floor level, we could eat of lunches one bite at a time and in-between starts and stops and hope that the band director didn't catch us. I think I got caught more than Marcus, but always laughed about.

Marcus was my friend in high school, he had the funniest sense of humor, he was always messing around and had everyone laughing. I miss his smile and friendship. Bottom line: he is a great human being that is surely missed. God bless you Marcus and your family!

“ Marcus Raphael Ford was one of 80+ trailblazers that were the first to integrate Henderson High School of Chamblee, Georgia in 1984. He was in the band, played baseball, and soccer for the school. He was voted best dressed male our senior year c/o 1988. He was one of the smartest guys in our class and always said he wanted to be an attorney; and there was no doubt because he had what it took. He made an impression with everyone he met. Thanks to his mother, Alma Ford who loved him beyond words, and her firm guidance, Marcus was best dressed from the inside, out. He was not only smart, he was kind, empathetic, peaceful, keen, insightful, and loved life. He never met a person that he couldn't converse with and appreciate. He was a true friend to his friends. His presence in this world will be missed.

“ I remember Marcus from high school. He played soccer and played trumpet in the band. Although we didn't always run in the same circles we we knew each other cause he played in the band and I football and him being a year behind Marcus was a cool individual.
