Tribute Wall

“ I found out today about the passing of Patricia, and despite it being such a long time after her passing I wanted to pass on my condolences to the family.

I was not close to Patricia but knew here over a number of years , first as my hairdresser, then later as the owner of Red Roses in Østerbro then Store Strandstræde. We saw each other at various social events over the years together with her husband Søren, and she was a valued part of the black community in Copenhagen.

I last saw Patricia in 2013 soon after the passing of my mother in law whom lived close to Patricia's boutique. Things were a little tough on many fronts, and I didn't follow up for a long time having recently been bereaved, so soon after the passing of my father the year before.

I did attempt to get hold of her in 2014, and wish now I had tried harder to find her.

I knew Patricia as a strong, proud and supportive fellow sister, a Nigerian a beautiful and elegant woman.

May she continue to rest in peace.
