“ To the family of Phyllis, I send my deepest sympathies for the passing of my classmate, sister, and friend. My thoughts went back to us getting ready for the McD#35's Explosion show, and us rehearsing at my house. Phyllis' spirit was always upbeat and joyful. You will be deeply missed Sis. Family she's not gone. Her spirit lives on within all of us. Remember that God only allows us on this earth for a short time. Rest my dear sister. I will continue to pray for the family because death is hard to deal with, but rejoice in knowing that she is with Him. Love to you all, Corbie Johnson

“ I remember the first time I met Phyllis, Meta you were in the hospital, Phyllis and I were joking over who was your sister. You were heavily medicated and we laughed at how you kept trying to see what we were talking about (you were even nosey then). I know that was the day that Phyllis and I became sisters in Christ. We laughed and prayed together. I will never forget her.

“ My love and heart goes out to my lil sis Tryce and my baby Kayla. Words cannot express the genuine love that I have for this family. I can hear the love and excitement in Tryce's voice whenever she would speak to her mom. There is nothing like a mother's love. I wish that I was able to be there with you guys, but just know upon your return your family and friends will be here with open arms to comfort you and help you make it through this time! God said that he would never leave you nor forsake you. Hold on to his word family! We love you all! Dyrico & Swan Patrick

“ My condolences of course were/are sent...I think I immediately fell in love with her when I discovered just how sarcastic and smart alecky (sp) she was...I LOVE THAT! I think we were really blood related...u know old folks don't tell everything...lol...but the bestest memory, we were sitting around talking and laughing as usual, and all of sudden she had this serious look on her face...she leaned in and said, Sandra, don't you think men stink? me, huh? her, men, don't you think they stink? me, well I guess, sometimes LMAO....she was sooooooo serious...OMG...i was about to die laughing...at that moment I knew she had won a space in my heart. Never ever will she be forgotten but always she will be missed.

“ Candace was my friend as well as my work out partner at the gym, we talked and laughed and than she would stand beside me on the elliptical and say I will watch you while you work out I am good. She was so funny and always checked up on me. You will be greatfully missed my co-worker and my friend. May God open his arms to you and I will keep your family and friends in my prayers.Love always,Deberah Williams
