“ When I think of the last two visits I had with Regina my heart smiles. I went to see her in August and I brought her a program and gift from my birthday celebration earlier that month. There is a photo of us together in the program and Regina was just delighted that I had put a program aside especially for her. We looked at all of the photos and laughed and thoroughly enjoyed our visit. I visited with her again in October. Edna Hartwell and her cousin were also there. Our visit was lively and filled with a mixture of west coast (CA) candor, Louisiana warmth, genuine love and all that was good.

I had the opportunity to sit with Regina and to tell her how much she meant to me. I told her how she mentored me and blessed my life on so many occasions. She blessed me when she requested that I come into Andy's hospital room as he was making his transition. In allowing me to be with her during such an intimate moment my Sister taught me a profound lesson. She helped me to understand the process of transitioning and how to “be” in that situation.

I stood praying and listening as she ushered her Andy from this side of the river Jordan. She told him what a good man, friend, husband and father he was. She recalled special times that they shared. She thanked him for being her husband, she blessed him and released him to cross over to the other side. Regina's regality even in grief is an enduring beautiful memory.

Now my dear SOJ Regina, you have crossed over the River Jordan to be reunited with your Andy. I thank God for the gift of your life. I thank God that I am blessed by your wisdom and the light that you left me to carry forth. The light of your wisdom and love will continue to live in me, my fellow SOJ and so many others you have blessed. Much LOVE to you my dear SOJ, Blessings & Much Love..

“ I'm sorry that your loved one fell asleep in death. May your faith in God's loving resurrection provision give you all comfort and peace as you look ahead to the time when "death will be no more" and God's promise to "make all things new" will be fulfilled. ~ Revelation 21:3-5. God is faithful and always keeps his promises!

“ At First I Cried! I learned of your transition as I made my way to Hartsfield to catch a flight to Texas for Thanksgiving. (You know how I hate to fly!) The thought of never holding your hand or hearing your words of wisdom and inspiration penetrated my Spirit with each breath. With each step the weight and burden of the loss overwhelmed me. As I approached the long zig-zagging lines at the Security check, it became more and more difficult to hold back the tears. I took the first step inside the roped maze and handed the Agent my Boarding Pass. He smiled and said, “Today is your lucky day. Your Boarding Pass is marked “cleared” and you don’t need to go through security. I felt a rush of Peace and Joy and walked to the front of the line. I tried to rationalize the reason for the favor until the very same thing occurred at the Dallas Airport as I prepared to return home. Even though the return Boarding Pass was not marked “cleared” the Agent greeted me and told me to move to the front of the line.

Some might assume that one occurrence is a coincident; and the second is simply luck. But, I know that your Spirit was with me during my time of need and despair; just as you’ve always done on this side of Eternity.

I will forever cherish the memories of setting at your feet. Thanks for being such an incredible influence in my life. I pray that you always knew just how much I Love You!
