Though we believe death is the pathway to a better life, it is always difficult to say farewell. During this difficult hour, be comforted by the knowledge that a good life is not only measured numerically, but also by the quality of the journey. Rodney's exceptionalism was distinguished by a deep concern for those confronted with life challenges. His presence on this side leaves precious memories. Let us honor his memory by living the rest of our lives with care and concern for our fellow human beings. Let us also give praise and thanks to God for putting him in our paths.
