“ I have many fond memories of Uncle Bill. Memories from riding motorcycles, to shooting pool, to his smile and laughter. However, my greatest memories came from Uncle Bill being a salesman. He would sell at the flea market or he would sell in the neighborhood. No matter what he sold, it was always Fouty dollars not forty dollars. Any product you all for he would build a story behind it and then say that famous amount FOUTY ($40) dollars. His boldness to sell all types of products rubbed off on me. I picked up on his business acumen and started selling drink bottles, aluminum cans, black berries, grapes, lettuce and other things that can't be mentioned here, lol. However, it lead me to become a business man like my Uncle.

I love you Uncle Bill. Although we didn't have a lot of memories together throughout our lifetime I feel the pain of sadness and your loss tremendously. ❤️
